Hello.

Just my thoughts of a possible script or book of a dystopia.

Ultra wideband radars surveillance footage gets transmitted to a closed group of bad people who enjoy causing others pain. They simultaneously character assassinate the victim so that she'll never be heard.

Let's say it's about middle aged Greek woman. Takes place in Zante Island and Athens. So, Georgia Dima lived in Athens and got targeted by people who could get access to surveillance systems, like the ultra wideband radars I googled. They enjoy playing with people's minds and people's lives. Georgia to escape participates to the national exams for the national university, gets low grades due to the pressure, passes to Zante local public university and goes to Zante Island in September 2014. She doesn't know, but horrible lies are already told about her in Athens and Zante. In Zante the bad people are messing whith people's lives and destroy one by one her employers for giving her a job, by having their employees instructed how to make a mess of the work place. The bad people are spreading horrible lies and tell others what she says on the phone. They know everything she plans to do and they are ruining everything. Let's say the least they say to everyone is that she has to be mistreated to the job, the bad people enjoy orchestrating and watching scenes of people being treated badly. In August 2023 the bad people get access to all the phone calls she has made the last years. In August 2023 once again they play their favourite game of destroying someone's life by having them under surveillance and ruining everything remotely enough to be unknown but watching closely and enjoying. From the start of 2024 one of Georgia Dima's managers (the upper manager was seeing potential in her and due to character could not be told that Dima's calls were this and that, because she would NOT think is as a sign of power and intelligence) and a plethora of people in her every day life are told (more in comparison to the previous years) "she said that in her today phone calls, tell her you know too". They all start to try to provoke a mental meltdown by covertly joking next to her during all her shifts about very bad things she went through in her life. In November 2024 Georgia gets transferred in Athens. Takes all the paid leave and moves back to Athens. In Athens the bad people have orchestrated a horrible character assassination. They have everyone from Zante instructed to have their relatives and friends involved to try and provoke a mental meltdown by joking next to her about a very traumatic event, that is known to break anyone that happens to have been through it. At the same time they spread to the whole city of Athens rumours that describe her as a ridiculous immoral person. The ones that play with the ultra wideband radars (either watching if they are close by or receiving through transmission the information if they participate through a closed group from afar) spread the jokes to the majority by covering them in the disguise of the lie that Georgia Dima exhibits immoral behaviour and doesn't stand to hear the words of the traumatic past because the neighbors supposedly repeatedly hear her yell. Supposedly she gets mad to hear it that "everyone knows so" and instead of stopping to exhibit immoral behaviour she hates being corrected about that. In all the churches in a matter of months everyone is told so, the same for the majority of Athens residents, even tourists that went to Athens in 2025.

TLDR Script or book idea. People with access to ultra wideband radars, masters of manipulation, proud for their lack of conscience as a sign of intelligence once again play with someone's life, while orchestrating the victim's total character assassination so that "truth is what I choose"